

Our main principles as Degol Laboratory and Environment Service Inc are objectivity, independency and confidentiality.

As Degol Laboratory and Environment Service Inc, according to the principles of objectivity, independency and confidentiality, we give service to our customers with TS EN ISO/IEC 17025 standard and current regulation.

We are responsible of our employee's having sufficient technical information, being participative, creative, improving, content with their job and feeling safe and also their professional studies.

In order to advance our employee's qualities and competence we support creating equal opportunities for them and their joining internal and external trainings.

We use standard work order which is prepared considering the national and international standards in our assessments and analyses. We constantly control the competence of our service by attending competence experiments. Besides, we are also responsible of our employee's working proper to these standards.

Working systematically and also reaching improvements, is the basic of our aims we have decided.

The biggest earning for our company is to create customer satisfaction by gaining the respect and trust of the customer with giving the most possible quality service.

Getting the most right methods and techniques in the most short time is the biggest instrument while accomplishing our responsibilities.

The necessary studies will be done in order to better and improve the Quality Management System which is done according to TS EN ISO/IEC 17025 standard.

Our biggest source in success is our expert employees who constantly follow the changes and technology, open to innovation and change, have enough information. We believe that we will reach success with team work by adapting the conditions of TS EN ISO/IEC 17025 standards